CELEBRATING
OUR 60/30
ANNIVERSARY
Celebrating our rich history of compassion, foresight and innovation.

Stella Maris has always been a leader when it comes to caring for the elderly. Now in our 61st year of service, we continue to be guided by our mission to care for the elderly, the sick, and the dying from all economic and social backgrounds with respect, dignity, and kindness. In this issue of Reflections you will see how Stella Maris’ rich history of compassion, coupled with foresight and innovation, has made us who we are today.

This past year celebrated our 60th anniversary of caring for seniors and the 30th anniversary of our Hospice Program. As you read about the many ways in which we celebrated our anniversaries, you will see that our residents played an integral role in our year of festivities. Beginning the year with an outdoor summer concert and finishing with a resident and family brunch, the majority of our activities centered on those for whom we care.

Stella Maris offers many services, but caring for the aging is a major component of who we are and what we do. We are continually looking for ways to connect with the inner abilities of each person so that they may find joy in their daily activities. The two women pictured on the cover of Reflections illustrate how joy can be found when one discovers forgotten talents – especially when facing the challenges associated with aging.

As the changing healthcare landscape creates greater challenges, we will remain focused on the care and well-being of our residents. With your partnership we will continue to improve the quality of life for those we care for each day by advancing our resident-centered care model and always remembering that Stella Maris is more than a place to work – it is home to our many residents.

Sincerely,

Sister M. Karen McNally, RSM

Sister Karen McNally remembers coming to work at Stella Maris as a staff nurse nearly 44 years ago. At the time, the building was a fraction of its current size and had no air conditioning. Yet even then, Stella Maris was on the cutting edge of care. For example, when its infirmary opened in 1967, it was equipped with piped oxygen rather than standard oxygen canisters. “I remember when we first started doing IV therapy,” says Sister Karen. “And when we opened the subacute unit, no one else had one.”
In 2013, Stella Maris celebrated 60 years of caring for the aging as well as the 30th anniversary of its hospice program. Many things have changed over that time, most notably the resident population.

When Archbishop Francis P. Keough dedicated Stella Maris in 1953, residents needed to be able to walk through the front door. Now, not only are people living longer with more chronic health conditions, they are staying in the hospital for less time, requiring places like Stella Maris to have highly specialized care. “The whole technical area of care has changed dramatically,” explains Sister Karen. Families require more support than in the past, too, particularly those with loved ones who have dementia.

Stella Maris has always tried to anticipate and meet the needs of its community, whether that means advancing skilled nursing care or adding the hospice program, as it did in 1983. With the addition of hospice services, Stella Maris developed outreach programs including bereavement counseling for adults, teens, and children. Realizing the need for more community-based services, Stella Maris expanded its reach with skilled home care, personal care services, and a full-service senior day care center where clients can participate in a variety of activities and can even enjoy on-site hair and dental appointments – conveniences that also ease the burden on caregivers.

“We’re not diminishing our services to the aging,” explains Sister Karen, “we’re expanding and being more holistic. As we move into the future, we’ll continue to expand community-based services.”

The last 60 years have seen many changes – the addition of air conditioning not least among them – and the expansion of facilities. What remains the same, and differentiates Stella Maris in its field, is its commitment to its mission. “This is not a business for us,” explains Sister Karen. “It’s a service and a mission of Mercy.”
Perhaps the greatest audience to appreciate the hard work and determination it takes to make it to a landmark anniversary is the Stella Maris residents, who embraced celebration events with gusto. “They took great pride in the anniversary,” states Andrea Gage, Director of Programs and Activities. “They understand what it takes to have something last a long time.”

Stella Maris hosted a number of special events for residents, staff and special friends to commemorate the anniversary year, starting with an outdoor concert on the evening of June 22. An 11-piece big band, Ain’t MisBehavin’, played music from the 1950s for 250 guests. Every detail was researched to hark back to the year 1953, down to the candy that was given out.

Working with the Resident Council and the Human Resources department, Andrea Gage planned several events that engaged residents, including a pumpkin painting contest in October. Approximately 125 pumpkins were entered and displayed for three days for judging. Many were saved and used for décor at events later in the fall, including the November 3 Mass and brunch for residents and families.

The Mass was broadcast on all Stella Maris televisions so those who could not attend in the chapel could participate, and Holy Communion was offered on all floors. After the service, families attended a brunch with their loved ones. Residents helped plan the menu and construct the 115 centerpiece pieces that brightened the dining rooms. Fifties music was played, and oversized posters made by each unit to congratulate Stella Maris on its anniversary were on display. Also on view were 18 watercolors painted by residents on the theme of “Dreams of the last 60 years,” the result of the first-ever resident art show. As a special acknowledgement of the residents, each was given a yellow carnation boutonniere or corsage to wear on the day of the Mass and brunch.
Anniversaries are a time to reminisce, but they are also key strategic markers that encourage forward thinking.

Eight-year-old Mariana Rosenstiel, with help from her father, Robert Rosenstiel, shared her experience about losing her mother in hospice at The Spirit that Inspires Us: A Stella Maris Celebration of Stars.

Throughout the year, Stella Maris took every opportunity to recognize the 60/30 anniversaries and thank those who made them possible. There were special recognitions offered at the Crab Feast, which hosted more than 1,000 guests and raised money to support the hospice program. Employees received special anniversary polo shirts and were treated to a catered cookout. On November 2, Stella Maris hosted The Spirit that Inspires Us: A Stella Maris Celebration of Stars, to thank those whose financial support has allowed Stella Maris to prosper and grow over the years. The anniversary year concluded with a special Mass on December 22 with Archbishop William E. Lori as celebrant.

Anniversaries are a time to reminisce, but they are also key strategic markers that encourage forward thinking. Even as Stella Maris reflected on its success, it was talking about the future. Stella Maris is in a time of culture change, continuing to evolve as it has for more than six decades. Though the resident population is older and requires more specialized care, Stella Maris is shifting away from institutional models of care to one that is person-centered. There are changes being made, both in infrastructure and with regards to staff training, to provide the highest level of care in the most home-like environment. As Sister Karen explains, “We’re changing people’s thinking from ‘Do what I say.’ to ‘What can I do for you and what would you like?’”

There are new aspirations ahead for Stella Maris. Creating a new sub-acute/rehabilitation unit tops the list. Additionally, Stella Maris continues to meet the challenge of culture change with innovative programs enacted with the thoughtfulness that comes from being mission driven. It can be hard to stay ahead of the curve, but the reward is tangible in the services provided to residents and the community. The work being done today and tomorrow will be here to be celebrated in another anniversary year.
Each spring, children who have lost a loved one get together at Camp Puh’Tok in Monkton to shout, cry, laugh, play and learn that they are not alone with their grief.

Stella Maris has had child and youth bereavement programs for more than 25 years and began the overnight camp in 2011. For the last four years the camp has been funded in part by a grant from the Hospice Education Institute. Now you, too, can help Camp Me Too by making an online donation or by using the enclosed envelope.

Some of the 2014 camp highlights included a professional magician and motivational speaker who gave performances on the theme of “The magic of memories.” Campers took nature walks, entered the “Volcano Cave” (a safe place to release their anger), and participated in Native American drumming and dancing. New this year was an equine therapy component where children groomed and rode horses.

A PLENTIFUL FEAST

The Auxiliary pledges $75,000 to improve dining facilities
The tide of culture change at Stella Maris has inspired everyone, and the Auxiliary is no exception.

When Sister Karen spoke about Stella Maris’ culture change, members of the Auxiliary were particularly struck by the needs of the dining facilities. In an effort to make dining more home-like, Sister Karen explained the need for new tables, chairs, curtains and other necessities. These upgrades are expected to cost $75,000. The Auxiliary has pledged to provide those funds. All the money raised by the Auxiliary from October 2013 through October 2014 will be directed to improvements to dining at Stella Maris.

“The dining experience was something we could really work for because it’s something the residents do every day, three times a day,” explains Joan Gencel, president of the Auxiliary and a member for more than a decade. “We’d like to think we can help make that a more pleasant experience.”

Founded in 1955, the Auxiliary is essential to fundraising for Stella Maris. Its members are also “ambassadors” for Stella Maris in the community. The Auxiliary manages the day-to-day operations of the Gift Shop and Good Buy Shop. With the support of the Craft Group, they conduct special Christmas and springtime sales. They are also responsible for smaller works including a variety of raffles throughout the year.

While $75,000 seems an ambitious pledge, the Auxiliary is no stranger to lofty goals. Since donations started to be tracked in 1991, the Auxiliary has contributed more than $1.8 million to Stella Maris. In recent years, the money raised has gone to the general fund. Gencel states that having a specific goal to work toward makes fundraising all the more enjoyable.

“It makes you feel better when you see a nice dining room with real tablecloths and flowers on the table,” she states. “Dining excites [the Auxiliary] because we’ll be able to see where our money and efforts are going.”

The event benefitted the Monsignor Lyness Fund, which provides financial resources for hospice patients and their families who cannot afford hospice care. More than $130,000 was raised – an all time record! Event chair Traci Scanga led the planning of a perfect afternoon during which more than 1,100 guests enjoyed steamed crabs, pit meats, great music and exciting auction selections.

Mark your calendar for Sunday, October 12, 2014 when Stella Maris will host its 30th Anniversary Crab Feast and Auction. The event was led by the husband and wife team of Joe Hickey and Rita Costello and their committee of hard working wine lovers. A special thank you goes out to the Stella Maris Advisory Board, the many who attended the Wine Tasting, as well as the dedicated individuals who worked tirelessly to create this outstanding event, especially Steve and Jill Golueke, owners of Cranbrook Liquors, who made this event possible. In addition, we thank our many sponsors and wine distributors for their continued support and dedication to our mission.

An honor gift can be made to honor a friend or family member for a birthday, anniversary or other special occasion.

When you make a memorial or honor gift, an acknowledgement card will be sent to you and to the person or family honored. Your gift is a convenient and thoughtful way to show how much you care.
